GOOD-SIZED RAINFALL.
Reservoir Now Over Five Feet Higher Than a Year Ago When It Was Losing Two Inches a Day.

There was an excellent rainfall on Wednesday, and it is believed that an inch and a quarter will be secured from the storm which will be at afternoon. 55 of a inch has fallen, making 1.90 for the month thus far, which is more than was secured in October last year, 1.77 of an inch. Since that time much rain fell, so that the reservoir should show quite a gain today.

The last measurement at Fairview on Saturday showed it to be 292 inches higher than the level of but a drop of three inches in two weeks, while last year on the same day it was 264 inches lower and it was then dropping at the rate of two inches a day. This is a vast improvement over the condition of a year ago, at which time no elevators were being used.

DEEP WELL ABANDONED

AT STATE HOSPITAL
Salt Water Secured Which Made It Unfit for Bath Use—Will Drive One Near Reservoir.

It has been decided to abandon the deep well which has been dug on the Norwich State hospital near the power house, and which has reached a depth of about 200 feet. On two different tests salt water had been found. It was first found at twenty feet before the ledge was encountered, but as soon as the ledge was entered a wall packer was put in and the salt water was shut off, but some distance further a fissure in the rock was passed through which yielded salt water, and, strange to say, the water was more salt than the river water. This was sealed off, but the rock was of such a character that it was believed that it would not be practical to continue the well since the packing reduces the diameter each time.

The location for the new well has been selected about 40 feet below the present well near the reservoir. It will be a ten-inch well, which will become eight inches in diameter as soon as the ledge is encountered.

At the depth of 185 feet the greatest flow was to be argued being that the reservoir, but they went to the depth of 300 feet to allow the installation of the air lift. At the old well, which is 28 feet above tide water, ledge was encountered at 30 feet, but at the abandoned well, which nine feet above tide water, ledge was not found until 190 feet of pipe had been driven.

In this abandoned well, sand of varying fineness was found, some of it being so fine as to make the drilling slow, and the rock when struck was found to be hard and brittle. Two to three feet could be drilled in a day, when ordinarily eight to ten feet are drilled.

TWO MORE CASES HEARD BY SUPREME COURT.
One More remains to Be Heard—Session Extended Half Hour on Wednesday.

The supreme court resumed its session here on Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock. The first case was that of William H. Allen and others, trustees, vs. Andrew B. Davies, administrator, which was heard by the court.

An estate left by Zachariah Huntington of Norwich, which died in 1850, was heard. Zachariah Huntington died in 1850 and left his estate, a large one, in trust to his son, Thomas M. Huntington.

Thomas M. Huntington died a year later and left his estate to his four children. In 1902 only one of the four children was alive, Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Childs, so the other three-fourths of the estate were distributed among the children of the other three.

Recently Mrs. Childs died childless, and now the question arises as to what disposition should be made of her fourth of the estate.

This was followed by the case of James E. Constock vs. the town of Waterford, appeal from the board of assessors. The question is whether the owner of the land is to be assessed for taxes on buildings which belong to another, but stand on his land. The arguments were completed by continuing the session for an extra half hour until 4:30 o'clock.

Today the case of Annie Thorsen vs. the Groton and Stonington street railway company will be argued.
